Paul M won the week. You can tell because he's farthest to the left. The more to the right your name appears, the worse you did!

Once the games are done, I put in the scores. Here, Denver won 26-6, and the Denver row gets outlined, making it easy to see if people got their pick right and for how much. Here, Dave had 7 on New York (oops) while Sue had 5 correctly on Denver.

A lot of the participants in this pool are Minnesota or Green Bay fans. This was a decent season to show Viking bias, but sometimes it leads people astray.

Madi and Steve went for an upset, putting 3s on Tampa Bay. Their lonely numbers outside the outlined winners shows up pretty clearly.

Baltimore won this one in overtime, hence the OT by the game score.

Miami was the clear favorite in this contest but Buffalo won. You can see that most people's picks are outside the highlighted box.

Paul's won this week on his tiebreaker-- three people got 124 points, but Paul's 55 was closest to the actual 38-17 score total (exact, actually, although closest will do). The W by his score shows him the Winner.

These numbers are the seasonal ranks, and John is #1 on the season (and would win it in the end), although he's only 18th this week. He's got 1,081 points. You can see that numbers 2 (1,071 points) and 3 (1,064), also in red, are both ahead of him this week, and so closing the gap.

The "Market" entry represents a method of compiling the statistical composite of all the choices made in this week's pool. This is an experiment and has no bearing on the outcome of the pool. Entries are in the order of last week's scoring. Cumulative scores aren't finalized until final game for week finished. The Cumulative Score only shows for full-season participants.
